

11.5 When circles are parallel to the ground plane, the major axis is always horizontal to the viewer. At eye level a circle appears as a straight line. As it moves further up or down from eye level it appears as an ellipse that is opening wider and wider (its proportion approaches but will never reach 1:1).